Healing Aboriginal Peoples:
Mind, Body and Spirit

Seasons to Grow

Seasons to grow is the introductory program in the youth series. The different seasons of the year provide a rich symbolic framework to explore issues. The seasons can represent being present in the current season or the stages of change. Changes happen within each season and from one season to another.

Seasons to grow is a program of personal growth, resilience and safety for primary school aged young people.

Let's Chat

Let's Chat consolidates the educational and informative format of the previous programs. It is structured to allow the opportunity for each participant to interact at his or her development level to explore their knowledge, skills and attitudes in an appropriate environment. Let's Chat is a stepping stone to young people making informed decisions regarding alcohol and drugs and protective behaviours. The program discusses the consequences of experimentation during adolescence including social and health outcomes.

Programs can be tailored to your needs by negotiation.
